Writers have been writing about war since the siege of Troy, but few, if any, have captured the first-person experience of war as deeply as My Vietnam War. Set in 1967 (the deadliest year of the Vietnam War), this memoir-style novel depicts the psychological journey of a young man whose carefree days of studying philosophy at the university are ended by the draft. The story follows him from his initial rear-echelon assignment in Saigon, where he falls for a mysterious storytelling bar girl, to his eventual posting at an isolated front-line firebase in one of the deepest parts of the Vietnam jungle. While recovering from a leg wound (he is hit by a piece of bone from a fellow soldier who stepped on a booby trap mine), he becomes the assistant medic and sees the horrors of war close up. The experience begins his steady spiral down into PTSD. After he is seriously wounded, he ends up back in Saigon where, after an old friend from Arizona gets him involved in the underground drug trade, the mysterious bar girl may be his only hope for salvation. It is a powerful story, well-written, with vivid detail that you will never forget.

Since Eve handed Adam that yummy apple, encounters between human males and females have been a challenge. These six stories show how human pairings are rarely easy, often bringing joy and misery in equal measure. In The Old Switcheroo an accidental luggage mix-up catapults a successful young engineer into the chaotic lives of a porn actress and her gangster husband. In Organ Stops the power of sophisticated artificial intelligence collides with the deeper intelligence of human love, and loses. Readers of Departure discover how a young artist's failure leads to a new beginning at the hands of a young man with an old boat and a taste for distant planets. In A Shroud Has No Pockets a chance reconnection with a teenage admirer saves a wife from arrest for killing her husband. Banker's Hours proves that the best things in love and life are often not the ones you plan for. In One Man's Art . . . two young art lovers defend their favorite painters to a potentially disastrous climax.
